

A Professional Development Opportunity

Courage TO Teach®

---

In a time when stress and pressure on teachers and administrators continues to rise because of internal and external demands, Courage to Teach® provides educators with an opportunity for rest, renewal and re-engagement with their identity and integrity as teachers.

The program, originally conceived by esteemed educator Parker J. Palmer, offers educators an opportunity to reflect on the inner dimensions of teaching and leading. Each retreat consists of 20-25 participants who gather to engage in honest self-reflection and explore questions about purpose, values and commitment to their challenging work. In doing so, they increase their capacity to listen to self and others more deeply. Because inner work takes time, participants are asked to commit to faithful attendance at the year long process.
